

Narration #8

(He Comes Again)

Amy Webb

From the terrible conflict in Gethsemane, Christ emerged a victor. Though in the dark tribulation of that hour He had pleaded that the bitter cup be removed from His lips, the Father's will was never lost sight of. Jesus held on. He pressed on. The goodness in Him allowed faith to triumph even in state of complete anguish. And then came Judas with his betraying kiss; Christ's surrender to His enemies.

the arrest of the Son of God, then came the final pronouncement of Pilate. After three appeals to the multitude of Jews to spare one of their own fell upon deaf ears, Pilate delivered Jesus to be scourged. When the cross had been prepared, they placed it upon His shoulders and led Him to Golgotha. "But Jesus was enfeebled by hours of violent agitation, by an evening of deep emotion, by the mental anguish of the garden, and by the three trials and three sentences of death before the Jews.

To On My Way

All of these, added to the wounds of the scourging and loss of blood, had utterly broken His physical strength. So a bystander was enlisted to carry the heavy cross.
